

Joint Media Statement
HTU Strike at The Chronicle Herald
August 5, 2017

(HALIFAX) – After two days of mediation over the Natal Day long weekend The Chronicle Herald and its striking newsroom workers have tentatively reached an agreement to end the 18-month strike.

The terms of the deal have not been disclosed and a media blackout will continue until the agreement is ratified.

The parties thank provincially appointed mediator William Kaplan for his assistance and are pleased to focus on putting this difficult period behind them. We look forward to working together to provide Nova Scotians with the news and information they rely upon.
